

About the Authors

Christine Abrahams, M.A., NCC, LAC, Counselor and Group Coordinator at Hunterdon Central Regional High School in Flemington, New Jersey. Ms. Abrahams created the InSpire program, an innovative character education program that integrates group counseling and martial arts to assist at-risk youth in reducing depression and building self-esteem and self-control. (Chapter 20)

Judith Bachay, Ph.D., LMHC, Associate Professor of Counselor Education at St. Thomas University, Miami, Florida. She has authored two conflict resolution books for the Peace Education Foundation and is a member of Women Waging Peace. Her research interests include the intersection of race, gender and other cultural variables. (Chapter 14)

Sheri Bauman, Ph.D., NCC, MAC, Licensed Psychologist, Assistant Professor, Department of Educational Psychology, University of Arizona. Dr. Bauman teaches in a graduate program in school counseling and maintains a small private practice specializing in sex offender evaluation and treatment. Her research interests include bullying, group work, and professional issues in school counseling. (Chapter 10)

Charmaine Caldwell, M.Ed., LPC, NCC, is a second year doctoral student in Counselor Education at Texas A&M University-Commerce. She plans to hold a faculty position when she graduates and will both seek a mentor and provide mentoring for graduate students. Her primary area of interest and research is in school counseling. (Chapter 31)

Ashley Callicutt. (Chapter 16)

Challon Casto, M.S., LPC, NCC is a doctoral candidate and college counselor at Texas A&M University-Commerce. Her collaborative or individual presentations at the national, state, and local level have included the areas of play therapy, supervision, mentoring, adolescent female identity development, cultural violence, relationships, child discipline, and effective presentation skills. (Chapter 31)

Ruth Chao, M.S., Intern, Counseling Center, Michigan State University. She has to her credit several publications and conference presentations on multicultural counseling, cross-cultural psychology, non-traditional students counseling, and health psychology. Her research interests range over multicultural competence, multicultural training, and smoking and health. (Chapter 17)

Dana L. Comstock, Ph.D., is a Professor of Counseling in the Department of Counseling and Human Services at St. Mary's University, San Antonio, Texas. She is editor of Diversity and Development: Critical Contexts That Shape Our Lives and Relationships to be published by Wadsworth/Brooks-Cole in 2004. (Chapter 25)

Angela Coker, Ph.D., LPC, NCC, Assistant Professor & Clinical Coordinator, Counselor Education Program, University of Alabama at Birmingham. Dr. Coker's research interests include examining how race, class, and gender influence an individual's perceptions and usage of counseling services. As a practicing licensed professional counselor she specializes in women's issues. (Chapter 13)

Gerald Corey, Ed.D., is Professor Emeritus of Human Services at California State University at Fullerton and Adjunct Professor of Counseling and Family Sciences at Loma Linda University. He is a Diplomate in Counseling Psychology, American Board of Professional Psychology; a licensed psychologist; and a National Certified Counselor. (Chapter 29)

Sedahlia Jasper Crase, Ph.D., Department of Human Development and Family Studies, Iowa State University. Her research interests include parenting in foster and adoptive families. (Chapter 8)

Carol Dahir, Ed.D., Coordinator of Counselor Education @ NYIT is an accomplished national presenter in the areas of national standards, program development, and school counselor accountability. She has many publications to her credit and has co-authored two new recent books: Introduction to School Counseling: Vision to Action and School Counselor Accountability: A Measure of Student Success. (Chapter 18)

Michael P. Demask, Ph.D.,NCC, LMHC, CAP, Professor, Hazelden Graduate School of Addiction Studies, Center City, Minnesota. Dr. Demask is the co-author of A Model for Training Master's Level Addiction Counselors in Group Process. His interests include counselor supervision, multi-cultural counseling from an addiction counseling perspective. (Chapter 30)

Marcy J. Douglass, M.S. is a counselor education doctoral student at the College of William & Mary in Virginia. She is a student director of Project EMPOWER and has ten years of public school experience. Her research interests include feminist identity development, mother and daughter relationships, and prevention programming. (Chapter 32)

Thelma Duffey, Ph.D., is an Associate Professor of Counseling and Graduate Program Coordinator at Texas State University. Dr. Duffey is Editor for the Journal of Creativity in Mental Health, the Haworth Press, Inc. Publishers. Her research interests include relational development, grief and loss, diversity, and creativity in clinical practice. (Chapter 25)

Fernando Garzon, Psy.D., Associate Professor, School of Psychology and Counseling, Regent University. Dr. Garzon's research interests include forgiveness, inner healing prayer, and multicultural issues. He is an Associate Pastor at "Cristo Redentor", a Latino congregation located in Virginia Beach, Virginia. He also co-hosts "Encuentro", a regional Spanish counseling radio program. (Chapter 26)

Samuel T. Gladding, Ph.D., NCC, Chair, Department of Counseling, Wake Forest University. Dr. Gladding is president-elect of the American Counseling Association and past president of the Association for Counselor Education and Supervision (ACES), the Association for Specialists in Group Work (ASGW), and Chi Sigma Iota. He is the author of numerous books on counseling. (Chapter 5)

Norman C. Gysbers, Ph.D., is a professor in the Department of Educational, School, and Counseling Psychology at the University of Missouri – Columbia. Gysbers' research and teaching interests are in career development, career counseling, and school guidance and counseling program development, management, and evaluation. (Chapter 7)

Jason H. King, MC, NCC, Utah Family Institute, Orem, Utah. Mr. King specializes in private practice using the evidence-based Functional Family Therapy model for youth at risk and their families presenting with substance abuse, conduct disorder, depression, anxiety, and sex offense-with a special emphasis on rural families. (Chapter 28)

T. Gregory Kopp, Psy.D. is a licensed clinical psychologist in private practice in Las Cruces, New Mexico. He specializes in forensics and the evaluation and treatment of sex offenders. He is a member of ATSA, and is interested in investigating the integration of humanistic principles with standard sex offender treatment approaches. (Chapter 10)

Edwin L. Herr, Ed.D.,NCC is Distinguished Professor Emeritus, The Pennsylvania State University. A former President of ACA, ACES, NCDA and Chi Sigma Iota, Herr is the author of some 30 books and more than 300 articles and book chapters. His research interests include career development, international approaches to counseling, and public policy in counseling. (Chapter 3)

Angela Holman, M.S. is a counselor education doctoral student at the College of William & Mary. She is currently completing her residency hours for licensure as a professional counselor (LPC) and family therapist (LMFT). Holman is researching the infusion of diversity and multiculturalism within feminist family therapy for her dissertation. (Chapter 32)

George Leddick, Ph.D., NCC, Coordinator of Clinical Curriculum, Department of Counseling, Texas A&M University Commerce. Dr. Leddick is co-author of the Handbook of Counseling Supervision and a Fellow of the Association for Specialists in Group Work. He served as its president in 2003-2004. (Chapter 16)

Linda L. Maier, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of School Counseling, Texas A&M University-Texarkana. Dr. Maier is the author of Green Grading. Her research interests include developing community, connectedness, and emotional intelligence. (Chapter 24)

Rick McKinney, Ed.D., is Founder of Rational Emotive Spiritual Counseling (REST), Executive Director of the REST Philly Project, and author of The Clinical Jesus a review of the psychotherapeutic techniques of Jesus. His specialty is spiritual, forensic and addiction counseling. He is the 2003 Volunteer of the Year - State of Pennsylvania Prison system. (Chapter 27)

Al Milliren, Ed.D., NCC, Professor and Coordinator of Counseling Education The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, Odessa, Texas. Dr. Milliren is a co-author of “Adlerian Counseling and Psychotherapy” in Capuzzi and Gross’ Counseling and Psychotherapy. His research interests include Adlerian Developmental Counseling and issues of adolescence. (Chapter 24)

Krista Moldenhauer, M.S., NCC, is a graduate of Texas A&M University. She is currently the Program Director for the Hunt County Child Advocacy Center, Greenville, Texas. Moldenhauer’s research interests include women’s issues, criminology, and religiosity. (Chapter 16)

Rafael Montes is an Assistant Professor of English at St. Thomas University. Dr. Montes is the author of Making Places: Generational Traumas in Contemporary Cuban-American Literature. One of the founding members of the Cuban Oral History Project at St. Thomas University, he is primarily interested in the role of (grand) parents in the preservation of exile histories. (Chapter 14)

John Murphy, Ph.D., School Psychology Training Director, University of Central Arkansas, is an internationally recognized practitioner and workshop trainer in brief solution-focused intervention for school problems. Dr. Murphy has written two books, including the award-winning, Solution-Focused Counseling in Middle and High Schools, published by American Counseling Association. (Chapter 22)

Eileen McCabe O’Mara, Ed.D., LADAC, NCC, Assistant Dean, Hazelden Graduate School of Addiction Studies, Center City, Minnesota. Dr. O’Mara is the co-author of A Model for Training Master’s Level Addiction Counselors in Group Process. Her interests include addiction, counselor supervision, and counselor burnout. (Chapter 30)

H. Gray Otis, MA. Mr. Otis has seventeen years of experience in research, consulting, and family life education. His company, Relational Dynamics, specializes in developing interpersonal skills for professional, personal, and family development. He is the author of several articles and publications including the Principle Skills and the Marriage Playbook Workshops. (Chapter 28)

Gerald Parr, Ph.D., NCC, LPC, Chair, Division of Educational Psychology and Leadership, College of Education, Texas Tech University. Dr. Parr has written about the use of interactive journaling in group work as well as the application of flow theory to counseling. (Chapter 15)

Mark Pope, Ed.D., NCC, MCC, MAC, ACS is the first openly gay man to be elected president of a major mental health professional association, the American Counseling Association. Dr. Pope is an Associate Professor in the Division of Counseling & Family Therapy at the University of Missouri - St. Louis. (Chapter 4)

Pedro Portes, College of Education, University of Louisville, Kentucky. (Chapter 3)

JoLynne Reynolds, Ph.D., is an Associate Professor of Counseling at Texas State University. Her research interests include child and adolescent therapy, attachment theory, and issues related to international adoptions. (Chapter 25)

Michele D. Ribeiro, MS, LPC, Doctoral Candidate in the Counseling Psychology Department, Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey. Ribeiro's research interests include multicultural and identity issues pertaining to ethnicity, sexuality, and gender. (Chapter 12)

Jill Riethmayer, LPC, NCC, LMFT, Division Counselor at Montgomery College. Ms. Riethmayer is the author of 10 counseling curriculum guides, four sets of story cards, and several published articles. Her areas of expertise include trauma, loss and grief, as well as crisis intervention. (Chapters 19, 23)

Carmen Salazar, Ph.D., NCC is an assistant professor in the Department of Counseling at Texas A&M University-Commerce. Her research emphasis is gender and ethnicity. Her publications, state and national presentations focus on multiculturalism and diversity, and gender issues. Dr. Salazar currently serves as treasurer of Counselors for Social Justice. (Chapter 31)

Howard B. Smith, Ed.D., NCC, CCMHC, LPC, Associate Dean of the College of Education and Counseling, South Dakota State University. Dr. Smith is committed to capitalizing on current and future technology to improve the counseling profession. His research interests lie in the area of efficacy studies and diversity issues. (Chapter 2)

Julia Ann Smith, Ed.D., LPC, NCC is both a practicing psychotherapist and Assistant Adjunct Professor at the University of Missouri-St. Louis. Dr. Smith has worked as a counselor and teacher in schools, community agencies, and private practice. Her research interests focus on interpersonal conflict and psychosocial development. (Chapter 9)

Carolyn B. Stone, Counselor Education, University of North Florida. (Chapter 18)

Kathleen Tillman, Eastern Mennonite University, Graduate Counseling Program. (Chapter 21)

Andrew T. Young, Ed. D. Counselor Education, NCC, LPC-T, Associate Professor in Behavioral Sciences, Lubbock Christian University. Clinical Director for the Critical Incident Stress Management programs at the Lubbock Police Department and the Lubbock Fire Department. Assistant Negotiator for the Lubbock Police Department S.W.A.T. Negotiating Team. (Chapter 15)

Janet E. Wall, Ed.D., is president of her own consulting company, Sage Solutions, which focuses on career development, assessment, and evaluation. She is immediate past president of the Association for Assessment in Counseling and Education, and is the American Counseling Association's representative to, and former chair of, the Joint Committee on Testing Practices. (Chapter 6)

Vicky Whipple, Ed.D., NCC, LCPC, Assistant Professor, Human Services/ Counseling, at National-Louis University, Elgin, Illinois. Her research interests include feminist critique, lesbian concerns, and gender as a multicultural issue. (Chapter 11)

Darren A. Wozny, Ph.D., Visiting Assistant Professor, Counselor Education Program, Mississippi State University-Meridian Campus. His research interest includes post-placement services for special-needs adoptive families. (Chapter 8)